February 2008

VOL. 115, NO. 2

FEATURES

22 The Exoplanet and the Amateurs
Backyard observers help pin down a distant world’s nature.
By Robert Naeye

24 The Astounding Comet Holmes
An obscure comet beyond Mars exploded into view last October, giving skygazers an unexpected treat.
By John E. Bortle

30 Le Verrier and the Discovery of Sirius B
There was more to the discovery of Sirius’s white-dwarf companion, now becoming visible again, than is usually told.
By Jay B. Holberg

68 February’s Ideal Eclipse of the Moon
A planet-studded total lunar eclipse, and the last one until 2010, occurs high in a dark sky on February 20th.
By Alan MacRobert

88 The Time-Travel Project
Two amateurs reach back in time — way back — to photograph the young universe.
By Johannes Schedler

On the cover: The Orion Nebula is among this season’s top deep-sky attractions. It’s also the highlight of this month’s Suburban Star-Hop, on the back of our foldout star chart. This spectacular portrait comes from Austrian amateur Johannes Schedler, more of whose fine work is displayed on page 88.

THIS MONTH’S SKY

51 February 2008 Sky at a Glance

52 Northern Hemisphere’s Sky
All Roads Lead from Orion
By Fred Schaaf

54 Binocular Highlight
The Pleiades: Messier’s Best
By Gary Seronik

55 Suburban Star-Hop
Swordplay in the South
By Ken Hewitt-White

57 Southern Hemisphere’s Sky
By Greg Bryant

58 Sun, Moon, and Planets
Eclipses and Close Encounters
By Fred Schaaf

65 Exploring the Moon
Rilles of Mystery
By Charles A. Wood

72 Celestial Calendar
Catching Crescent Moons in 2008
By Roger W. Sinnott

74 Deep-Sky Wonders
Starry Nights
By Sue French

On the cover: The Orion Nebula is among this season’s top deep-sky attractions. It’s also the highlight of this month’s Suburban Star-Hop, on the back of our foldout star chart. This spectacular portrait comes from Austrian amateur Johannes Schedler, more of whose fine work is displayed on page 88.
S&T TEST REPORT

34 iOptron’s Capable Cube
For surprisingly little money, you can get a well-functioning, portable, computerized drive on a sturdy stainless-steel tripod.
By Gary Seronik

ALSO IN THIS ISSUE

10 Spectrum
Countdown to 2009
By Richard Tresch Fienberg

12 Letters

16 Skyscape
An Extreme Star Cluster

18 News Notes

19 Mission Update
By Jonathan McDowell

20 50 & 25 Years Ago
By Leif J. Robinson

38 New Product Showcase

42 Books & Beyond

44 Astronomy Online
Reaching Out
By Stuart J. Goldman

47 Rambling Through the Skies
Driving at Night
By E. C. Krupp

78 Star Trails
The Accidental Comet
By David H. Levy

81 Event Calendar
Save the Date
By Katherine Curtis

84 Telescope Workshop
A Great Big Yolo
By Gary Seronik

86 Hobby Q&A

92 Gallery

104 Focal Point
Teenage Girl Beats Hubble!
By Gil McFarlane

You'll find bonus material for many Sky & Telescope articles online. Visit SkyandTelescope.com/skytel for links. And see page 14 to learn about our Moon calculator, our online advertiser directory, and other special features of our website.